

Gilmore Execution Stay Lifted

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Gilmore, said to be "very happy" that the U.S. Supreme Court lifted its stay of his execution, broke his 25-day hunger strike after hearing the news.

But an obstacle of his own making stood between the convicted murderer and the firing squad — his bid for freedom on a legal technicality.

Attorney Ronald Stanger said he would file a further action today in connection with last week's request for his client's freedom under a state law requiring that executions be carried out no later than 60 days after sentencing.

A lieutenant at the Utah State Prison said Gilmore, who had refused solid food since Nov. 19 because he was prevented from contacting his girlfriend, ate an orange and two cheese and lunchmeat sandwiches just before midnight. He later had an apple and some milk.

The lieutenant said he didn't know why Gilmore had ended his fast, but he said the prisoner had still not talked with his girlfriend, Nicole Barrett. She was confined to a mental institution following their attempted double suicide last month.

Gilmore, who has consistently said he preferred speedy death to a life in prison, said in his request for a writ of habeas corpus last week that Utah officials had to free him because they failed to execute him within the required 60-day period.

That period expired on Dec. 6, the day Gilmore, 36, was to have died for killing a Provo motel clerk during a robbery last July.

But the high court stayed the execution on Dec. 3 so it could consider whether to hear an appeal of the sentence by Gilmore's invalid mother, Bessie, of Milwaukie, Ore.

In voting 5 to 4 to lift its stay Monday, the Supreme Court returned the case to the 4th District Court in Provo, where Gilmore was first sentenced. The high court said it was satisfied that Gilmore knew what he was doing when he accepted his condemnation to death.

But three dissenting justices said the key issue was whether Utah's capital punishment law was constitutional and that Gilmore's own desire to face the firing squad makes no difference. The fourth, Justice Thurgood Marshall, said he disagreed specifically with Chief Justice Warren Burger's view "that Gilmore has competently, knowingly and intelligently decided to let himself be killed."

Stanger, who visited Gilmore Monday night, said his client was "very happy" the high court acted quickly.

Mrs. Gilmore's attorneys, Stanford law professor Anthony Amsterdam and Salt Lake City lawyer Richard Giaque, declined comment.

Opponents of capital punishment said they would try to get another stay even though Gilmore doesn't want it. "We're not going to give up at this point," said Jinks Dabney, an attorney for the Utah branch of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Efforts to prevent the execution also were expected from lawyers for other death-row inmates who fear Gilmore's death could hasten their own.

It was uncertain what the state's next move would be, although one attorney said Gilmore probably would face District Court Judge J. Robert Bullock for another execution date.

Carter Names 2 More Aides

ATLANTA (AP) — Pushing to complete his cabinet by Christmas, President-elect Carter is announcing at least four cabinet-level choices this week. For the first time in history, a woman is likely to be commerce secretary.

Carter scheduled a nationally broadcast news conference today to announce the names of two persons being given highlevel appointments. It was likely that one would be W. Michael Blumenthal, chairman of Bendix Corp., expected to be Carter's Treasury secretary.

Carter, it was learned, also has asked Jane Cahill Pfeiffer, a former IBM Corp. vice president, to serve as his commerce secretary. She would be the first woman to occupy the post since it was created in 1913.

John Dunlop, who resigned as labor secretary in the Ford administration, is a leading candidate to return to that post under Carter. In advance of the news conference, Carter was to meet with Dunlop today at the Georgia governor's mansion where Carter spent the night after interviewing prospective appointees Monday.

This was the second Carter-Dunlop meeting in two weeks. The prospect of Dunlop's nomination has drawn protest from some women's groups and representatives of minorities who claim he has failed to push for equal job opportunities.

Meanwhile, more names were appearing on the list of prospective cabinet appointees.

Harold Brown, president of the California Institute of Technology and a high Pentagon official in the Johnson administration, reportedly is a front runner for secretary of defense.

Carter is believed leaning toward the selection of Charles Schultze, budget director in the Johnson administration, to be chairman of the presidential Council of Economic Advisers.

And there were reports that Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., would be asked to be ambassador to the United Nations, though Young earlier said he wanted to stay in Congress rather than join the Carter administration.

Vice President-elect Walter F.

Mondale participated in Monday's interview sessions without speaking to reporters. Mondale has had little to say in public since he criticized major steel producers for raising prices during a Georgia visit two weeks ago.

The President-elect was returning to his home in Plains following the news conference. Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary, said he expected Carter to hold another news conference there later in the week, probably Thursday, to announce more appointments.

Carter previously announced his selection of Cyrus Vance, a Wall Street lawyer, to be secretary of state and of Thomas B. Lance, an Atlanta banker, to be his budget director.

Education Panel Urges 41 Changes In School Tax Setup

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state income tax provides Ohio an opportunity to make personal income a factor in the mix of the 'charge off' in the equal yield foundation formula for public education, a legislative committee has reported to the state Board of Education.

This was among 41 recommendations made to the board Monday by its legislative and budget review committee.

It also recommended: —Full funding of the state's equal yield formula which went into effect last year;

—School operating tax rates not be reduced as a result of any property tax reassessment;

—State support for local schools should be increased to at least 50 per cent;

—The state collect and distribute school taxes paid by public utilities;

The report noted the Education Review Committee originally recommended the new equal yield formula provide 20 per cent funding in 1975-76; 45 per cent in 1976-77, 70 per cent in 1977-78 and 100 per cent in 1978-79. In practice, the formula was funded at 17 per cent in 1975-76 and 26 per cent in 1976-77.

"An impartial analysis. . . would appear to indicate that most school funding problems are caused not by the basic elements of the formula, but rather the level of state funding," the committee reported.

Hughes 'Mormon Will' Believed Forgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney for the estate of Howard Hughes says gas station attendant Melvin Dummar was involved in forging the mysterious Hughes "Mormon will" which names him as one of the billionaire's heirs.

Attorney James Dilworth also told Superior Court Judge Neil A. Lake on Monday that the FBI concluded 10 days ago that fingerprints on an envelope containing the document belonged to Dummar. The FBI, however, would not comment.

"It's been our belief for months that Mr. Dummar was, and had to be, involved in the forgery of this will," said Dilworth.

Dummar was not available for comment, but his attorney, Roger Dutson, suggested in Ogden, Utah, that someone may have attempted to transfer his client's thumbprint to the envelope.

Dummar claims he found Hughes wandering in the desert in 1968, gave him a ride and loaned him a quarter. He was named in the handwritten will to receive one-sixteenth of his estate — an estimated $100 million or more. Dummar has said he had no knowledge of the document until it was made public.

Dilworth is a Texas attorney representing three of Hughes' maternal cousins in the hearings being conducted before Judge Lake to gather depositions prior to a Jan. 10 Las Vegas probate trial on the will's authenticity.

The court was also told that Dummar's fingerprints have shown up on a book and a magazine article about Hughes in the library of the college Dummar attended. Both publications

It noted that the legislature's intent of not reducing school operating tax rates as a result of reassessments is not being followed.

"If continued use is made of actual tax rates in the formula," the committee said, "a very serious inequity would result. . .

"The tax rate should be converted to an effective rate based on taxes levied exclusive of the tax credit."

The committee report says the state average support of operating costs for schools is now 43 per cent and this should be increased to an average of at least 50 per cent by the 1978-79 biennium.

"Such increased participation by the state should result in keeping increases in local property taxes at a minimum," the committee noted.

Among the 41 recommendations, the committee said projected needs in comprehensive and joint vocational schools through the 1978-79 school year call for an additional 1,100 units.

It suggested $56.3 million of state aid be appropriated to match local funds so that goals for vocational education services can be met.

It also recommended at least $30 million be appropriated to assist needed school districts in meeting classroom needs, and that an additional $8 million be made available for building construction to encourage small, poor school districts, to reorganize for efficiency, economy and improvement of educational quality.

contained samples of Hughes' handwriting.

Dutson said his client had never handled the envelope nor had any connection with the enclosed document. Dummar swore to that effect in a deposition last week in Salt Lake City.

"There's no way it could be (his fingerprints), unless somebody is trying through modern technological means to set up a case against my client," Dutson said. "We deny that Dummar has had anything to do with carrying forth the production or bringing of the will."

Dutson also said the fingerprints on the book "Hoax" and on a 1971 Life magazine article on Hughes were explained by the fact that Dummar looked at some Hughes biographical matter at Weber State College in Ogden out of curiosity after being named in the will.

The crudely written will, which contains numerous spelling errors, was found in the Salt Lake City headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) three weeks after Hughes' death on April 5. It has been called a fake by Hughes relatives.

Pay Story In Error

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Associated Press erroneously reported Friday that 23 nursing homes received overpayments from the Department of Public Welfare during an 11-month period.

In fact, 17 nursing homes received overpayments, according to an audit by Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson.

Patterson Nursing Home in Franklin County and Crestview Manor in Fairfield County were underpaid, according to the auditor's report, while Bryden Manor in Franklin County, Resthaven in Franklin County, Fairborn Nursing Home in Greene County and Deanview Nursing Home in Fayette County were found to have received the proper amount of payments.

The auditor's report on Friday had said that "his examiners discovered $115,636.19 in overpayments were made to 23 selected nursing homes during an 11-month period." The actual number of overpayments went to 17 nursing homes.

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE — Walt Spangler, chairman of the Pickaway County Bicentennial Commission, and Ned Harden, coordinator, check the dimensions of an underground chamber they have constructed in the front lawn of the Court House. As a Bicentennial project, probably the last of the year, the commission hopes to fill the chamber with documents they feel will have historical significance when the chamber is opened in 100 years. The documents will be put into place and the chamber sealed in a special 1:30 p.m. ceremony Tuesday, Dec. 28.

Paperwork Cut Proves Phantom

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford demanded a 10 per cent cut in the number of federal forms sent to Americans. He got it. But the remaining forms take 13 million more hours to complete because more people are filling in the blanks.

More students applying for federal scholarships and a new pension law designed to protect workers are the main reasons for the increased burden of paperwork.

In October 1975, Ford ordered the number of forms cut by 10 per cent.

At that time, the Office of Management and Budget listed 5,146 forms repeatedly sent to the public by 44 federal departments and agencies.

Ford's year-long campaign to cut government paperwork succeeded in wiping out more than 700 forms of the more than 5,000 used by executive departments.

The OMB's latest figures — as of Nov. 30 — show 4,418 forms.

And the November figure is below even the June 30 figure of 4,504 forms in use — the figure Ford cited in announcing the success of his effort during the summer.

But the measure of the burden of those forms — the number of hours needed to fill them out — has been going up.

In October 1975, OMB estimated that it would take 130.3 million hours to fill out the forms. In June of this year, OMB estimated 138.4 million hours. In October, the figure was 138.6 million.

Last month, the estimate was 143 million — up almost 13 million hours from the previous year.

As Ford admitted in July, most of the forms dropped were minor ones sent annually to only several hundred or several thousand people.

For example, the critique forms for the "Discover America Pow Wow And Trade Mart" and "Preliminary Fiscal Report and Final Fiscal Report (EPDA), Part E, Fellowship Program and Title IX-VB Fellowship Program" are absent from the October 1976 list. Together, those two forms elicited 772 responses and took 600 hours to fill out.

But the "Application for Determination of Basic Grant Eligibility for the Current Academic Year" is expected to get 3.5 million responses this year, up from 2 million in 1975.

Pay Raises, Ethics Studied By President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pay raises and tighter ethical standards for all three branches of government are the topics on the agenda for meetings President Ford has scheduled with congressional leaders.

Today's meetings come less than two weeks after a government commission urged that salaries for members of Congress, federal judges and top government executives be increased — but that the raises be tied to a stiffer code of ethics.

Ford has the authority to approve the raises or pass the recommendations on to his successor, President-elect Carter.

Many members of Congress believe that Carter would be politically unable to authorize early in his presidency the $37.6-million annual salary increase for some 2,500 officials who would be affected. They believe the only hope for the increases is for Ford to approve them.

But there is concern on the part of congressional leaders that the outgoing Republican administration might try to dictate ethical standards that Congress should adopt.

In its recommendation, the special commission said that federal executives and judges, as well as senators and representatives, be prohibited from receiving honoraria, legal fees, gifts or the proceeds of testimonial dinners for personal use.

It also said that professional fees

That change in the numbers of one HEW form adds an estimated 3 million hours of filling out the forms.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is the largest source of the bulge in the burden of the forms, OMB reports show.

In the past year, HEW has increased the burden of filling out its forms from 43.2 million hours to 49.8 million hours. The increase came while the number of different forms being sent out by HEW dropped from 957 to 798.

Next came the Department of Labor, which increased the burden of its forms by about 5 million hours, up from 15.4 million in 1975. The number of Labor Department forms dropped from 270 to 241 in the same period.

that have or appear to have influence on the conduct of public business should be banned.

The White House gave short notice of the meetings. Republican leaders were invited to breakfast, with Democratic leaders, including Rep. John Flynt Jr., chairman of the Ethics Committee, asked to a 10 a.m. meeting.

But Flynt and other leaders, including House Speaker-designate Thomas P. O'Neill and House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes, were out of town and said they could not get back to Washington in time.

Flynt, at a remote vacation lodge in Georgia, asked that it be postponed, but the White House said it would go on as scheduled.

The pay commission, headed by Peter G. Peterson, former commerce secretary in the Nixon administration, proposed raising salaries of members of Congress from $44,600 to $57,500; the salaries of the speaker of the House, the vice president and the Supreme Court chief justice from $65,000 to $80,000; and that of a Supreme Court associate justice from $63,000 to $77,500.

Cabinet members would get an increase from $63,000 to $67,500.

Top executive jobs in the federal government would go up from $44,600 to $60,000 for Level II; $42,000 to $57,000 for Level III; $39,900 to $53,000 for Level IV, and $37,800 to $49,000 for Level V.

Many members of Congress believe that Carter would be politically unable to authorize early in his presidency the $37.6-million annual salary increase for some 2,500 officials who would be affected. They believe the only hope for the increases is for Ford to approve them.

But there is concern on the part of congressional leaders that the outgoing Republican administration might try to dictate ethical standards that Congress should adopt.

In its recommendation, the special commission said that federal executives and judges, as well as senators and representatives, be prohibited from receiving honoraria, legal fees, gifts or the proceeds of testimonial dinners for personal use.

It also said that professional fees

that have or appear to have influence on the conduct of public business should be banned.

The White House gave short notice of the meetings. Republican leaders were invited to breakfast, with Democratic leaders, including Rep. John Flynt Jr., chairman of the Ethics Committee, asked to a 10 a.m. meeting.

But Flynt and other leaders, including House Speaker-designate Thomas P. O'Neill and House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes, were out of town and said they could not get back to Washington in time.

Flynt, at a remote vacation lodge in Georgia, asked that it be postponed, but the White House said it would go on as scheduled.

The pay commission, headed by Peter G. Peterson, former commerce secretary in the Nixon administration, proposed raising salaries of members of Congress from $44,600 to $57,500; the salaries of the speaker of the House, the vice president and the Supreme Court chief justice from $65,000 to $80,000; and that of a Supreme Court associate justice from $63,000 to $77,500.

Cabinet members would get an increase from $63,000 to $67,500.

Top executive jobs in the federal government would go up from $44,600 to $60,000 for Level II; $42,000 to $57,000 for Level III; $39,900 to $53,000 for Level IV, and $37,800 to $49,000 for Level V.

Labor May Go Easy On Contract Demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — A heavy year of labor negotiations looms ahead, and forecasters say unions are likely to help President-elect Carter's anti-inflation efforts by keeping wage increases moderate.

The help is more likely to result from economic circumstances rather than any effort on labor's part to kowtow to the new administration.

About five million workers will be affected in major contract talks next year, about the same number as in 1976, which had the heaviest bargaining calendar in three years. A number of key industries will be affected: steel, coal, longshoring, telephone communications, aerospace manufacturing, railroading and construction.

A sharp increase in wage settlements next year exceeding this year's average increases of 8 to 9 per cent in the first contract year could contribute to worsening inflation.

But labor experts say that the lower-than-expected inflation rates of 1976 and a continuation of a relatively high unemployment rate will help keep wage increases moderate.

"If the faucet is turned on and inflation heats up, unions will seek protection in the form of higher wages," says W.J. Usery Jr., the outgoing secretary of labor. But he notes that most contracts expiring in 1977 already have cost-of-living escalator clauses that help cushion against inflation, and he says this will remove some wage pressures.

Usery and other experts within the Ford administration predict 1977 settlements ranging around this year's 8 per cent level. In 1975, settlements averaged 10 per cent in the first contract year.

Because of high unemployment and the threat of new layoffs, job security is expected to be a major contract goal next year. Some unions are expected to follow the example set by the United Auto Workers this year in winning agreement toward a shorter work week at full pay.

While most forecasts call for generally smooth sailing next year, there are some storm clouds.

Political turbulence within the leadership of the United Mine Workers, mixed with the traditional militancy of the rank-and-file and a set of ambitious bargaining goals make a nationwide coal mine shutdown next December a possibility, according to the experts.

Heavy bargaining in the construction industry begins in April, with talks peaking in June, when 315,000 workers will be under expiring contracts. The industry is still suffering the effects of the recession, with unemployment remaining near 15 per cent, factors that are expected to temper union demands.

Ohio Electors Cast Ballots For Carter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One of the closest and most bizarre Presidential elections in Ohio history has culminated with President-elect Jimmy Carter's formal selection by the state's 25 electoral college members.

Leading up to Monday's electoral college vote, Carter survived a recount that actually widened his narrow election night margin and a vote fraud case that sought to win a court order for a new election in the state.

By the time the electors began to cast their ballots in accordance with Ohio law for the candidate they were pledged to support, Carter, the real drama was over. Three and a half hours earlier, U.S. District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary dismissed a lawsuit aimed at overturning the Nov. 2 election and blocking certification of Carter's pledged electors.

Kinneary said the evidence presented did not show any intent to commit fraud and simply did not amount to any significant deprivation of voters constitutional rights.

Cleared for action by the federal court, balloting in the electoral college began at noon. By 12:04 p.m., state Sen. Harry Meshel, acting as a clerk, told Secretary of State Ted W. Brown: "Twenty-five ballots for Carter."

Applause filled the chamber and moments later the 44th Electoral College unanimously endorsed Vice President-elect Walter Mondale. They then adjourned.

Goodwill Hit By Shortage Of Donations

The Chillicothe Goodwill Industries is currently experiencing a lack of sufficient donations to continue its work in helping the handicapped. Goodwill uses donated items to provide employment opportunities and work experience for individuals with physical, mental, emotional and social handicaps.

According to Goodwill official Anthony Regen, the level of donations usually drops off during the winter, but the decrease this year has been unexpectedly severe. Regen noted that Goodwill especially needs major appliances, furniture and small household items. He added that while the situation is not yet critical, it is very serious.

The Chillicothe Goodwill operation provides rehabilitative activities for 36 persons, as well as providing budget-priced refurbished goods for sale at its retail outlet, 158 East Main Street.

Residents of Chillicothe wishing to schedule a free home pick-up by a Goodwill truck should call 775-3000. Persons living outside of Ross County should call the local number listed under "Goodwill Industries" in their telephone directory. GE Sponsors Barbara Walters TV Specials

In keeping with General Electric's tradition of sponsoring high quality television programs, the company will sponsor four Barbara Walters specials to be shown on ABC-TV in 1976 and 1977. GE people will want to call them to the attention of friends and neighbors.

The first "Barbara Walters Special" will be broadcast tonight 10-11 p.m., EST on ABC. The program includes interviews with people in the news from all fields — including politics, sports, and entertainment. Ms. Walters will travel worldwide to secure interviews which will be done "on location" — where guests live or work, and not in a television studio.

According to Karl Koss, GE's manager of corporate advertising, "These shows, hosted by one of the most famous newswomen of the decade, will make news as well as provide new insights about the people who are in the news. The specials also add a new aspect to General Electric's tradition of sponsoring quality entertainment and information programming such as the 'GE Monogram' series, which were telecast on ABC in 1972 and the ongoing 'GE Theater'."

A number of key industries will be affected: steel, coal, longshoring, telephone communications, aerospace manufacturing, railroading and construction.

A sharp increase in wage settlements next year exceeding this year's average increases of 8 to 9 per cent in the first contract year could contribute to worsening inflation.

But labor experts say that the lower-than-expected inflation rates of 1976 and a continuation of a relatively high unemployment rate will help keep wage increases moderate.

"If the faucet is turned on and inflation heats up, unions will seek protection in the form of higher wages," says W.J. Usery Jr., the outgoing secretary of labor. But he notes that most contracts expiring in 1977 already have cost-of-living escalator clauses that help cushion against inflation, and he says this will remove some wage pressures.

Usery and other experts within the Ford administration predict 1977 settlements ranging around this year's 8 per cent level. In 1975, settlements averaged 10 per cent in the first contract year.

Because of high unemployment and the threat of new layoffs, job security is expected to be a major contract goal next year. Some unions are expected to follow the example set by the United Auto Workers this year in winning agreement toward a shorter work week at full pay.

While most forecasts call for generally smooth sailing next year, there are some storm clouds.

Political turbulence within the leadership of the United Mine Workers, mixed with the traditional militancy of the rank-and-file and a set of ambitious bargaining goals make a nationwide coal mine shutdown next December a possibility, according to the experts.

Heavy bargaining in the construction industry begins in April, with talks peaking in June, when 315,000 workers will be under expiring contracts. The industry is still suffering the effects of the recession, with unemployment remaining near 15 per cent, factors that are expected to temper union demands.

Ohio Electors Cast Ballots For Carter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One of the closest and most bizarre Presidential elections in Ohio history has culminated with President-elect Jimmy Carter's formal selection by the state's 25 electoral college members.

Leading up to Monday's electoral college vote, Carter survived a recount that actually widened his narrow election night margin and a vote fraud case that sought to win a court order for a new election in the state.

By the time the electors began to cast their ballots in accordance with Ohio law for the candidate they were pledged to support, Carter, the real drama was over. Three and a half hours earlier, U.S. District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary dismissed a lawsuit aimed at overturning the Nov. 2 election and blocking certification of Carter's pledged electors.

Kinneary said the evidence presented did not show any intent to commit fraud and simply did not amount to any significant deprivation of voters constitutional rights.

Cleared for action by the federal court, balloting in the electoral college began at noon. By 12:04 p.m., state Sen. Harry Meshel, acting as a clerk, told Secretary of State Ted W. Brown: "Twenty-five ballots for Carter."

Applause filled the chamber and moments later the 44th Electoral College unanimously endorsed Vice President-elect Walter Mondale. They then adjourned.

Goodwill Hit By Shortage Of Donations

The Chillicothe Goodwill Industries is currently experiencing a lack of sufficient donations to continue its work in helping the handicapped. Goodwill uses donated items to provide employment opportunities and work experience for individuals with physical, mental, emotional and social handicaps.

According to Goodwill official Anthony Regen, the level of donations usually drops off during the winter, but the decrease this year has been unexpectedly severe. Regen noted that Goodwill especially needs major appliances, furniture and small household items. He added that while the situation is not yet critical, it is very serious.

The Chillicothe Goodwill operation provides rehabilitative activities for 36 persons, as well as providing budget-priced refurbished goods for sale at its retail outlet, 158 East Main Street.

Residents of Chillicothe wishing to schedule a free home pick-up by a Goodwill truck should call 775-3000. Persons living outside of Ross County should call the local number listed under "Goodwill Industries" in their telephone directory. Goodwill also maintains 26 Collection Boxes at strategic locations throughout this area.

GE Sponsors Barbara Walters TV Specials

In keeping with General Electric's tradition of sponsoring high quality television programs, the company will sponsor four Barbara Walters specials to be shown on ABC-TV in 1976 and 1977. GE people will want to call them to the attention of friends and neighbors.

The first "Barbara Walters Special" will be broadcast tonight 10-11 p.m., EST on ABC. The program includes interviews with people in the news from all fields — including politics, sports, and entertainment. Ms. Walters will travel worldwide to secure interviews which will be done "on location" — where guests live or work, and not in a television studio.

According to Karl Koss, GE's manager of corporate advertising, "These shows, hosted by one of the most famous newswomen of the decade, will make news as well as provide new insights about the people who are in the news. The specials also add a new aspect to General Electric's tradition of sponsoring quality entertainment and information programming such as the 'GE Monogram' series, which were telecast on ABC in 1972 and the ongoing 'GE Theater'."

Miller, Ashville; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Radcliff, 359 Northridge Road; and Arch C. Ward, 201 W. Ohio St. Other donations are from Ray Carroll, M.D., and Farthing and Long, attorneys-at-law.

Business contributing to the VFW project include Mason Furniture, Christopher's Don Boutique, Stout Investment Co., Wardell Equipment Co. and Hi-State Beverage Co., Columbus.

A Page Of Opinion

Subtle Proposal

Responding to the Soviet Warsaw Pact proposal that the West join in an accord to ban first use of nuclear weapons is going to require some subtlety. As a matter of principle, the United States' policy all along has been that it will not initiate nuclear aggression.

But there is a difference between stating the intention and committing the nation on a formal accord. The fact that the Soviets made the proposal in the name of the Warsaw Pact is a warning that the Soviets hope to gain a propaganda advantage from it.

The records of Soviet and American treaty obligations are as different as night and day. The U.S. takes its treaty commitments seriously, the USSR does not. A formal accord signed by the U.S. could be the signal for the Warsaw Pact to begin probes with its superior conventional forces in Europe.

Trust is an important part of any international agreement. The record indicates caution on this proposal.

The Golden Age

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — Young, aggressive business executives take risks to make profits for their corporations.

Older, more experienced executives tend to proceed with caution, moving slowly, playing safe.

And that is why, for the first time in many years, men over the age of 45 or 50 are in demand for the top corporate positions today. The whiz kids will have to sit it out for awhile.

"We've had two recessions since the big Depression," says Paul R. Ray, head of the world's fifth largest executive search firm, "the most recent being in the last two years. Industry has not recovered from the shock. So, given the choice of a hotshot 35-year-old or an experienced 50-year-old, they're opting for the older man with experience."

"This is unusual. Age is usually a barrier. Traditionally, the younger, gutsier man takes precedence when the economy is moving, when the going is great. But we're feeling a decided desire for discretion and caution now. Companies were burned in the 1960s by young people in top positions who were aggressive, who had great educational credentials, but didn't have the 'seasoning' that was needed."

One might say it's the golden age for the golden-aged.

It won't last, of course. "The pendulum will swing back. The jury is still out as to whether we're coming to an end of our economic stall. When it's finished, big business will return to hiring the young corners who like change."

Meantime, in the marketplace, the young business executives are showing some decided differences from those of only a decade ago. In the '60s, it was popular to spurn big metropolitan-based corporate jobs — New York City, for example, was the pariah of posts, and young men concerned with the "quality of life" said no, thanks, you can keep your executive suite in Manhattan.

This year, although the "quality of life" is still of vital interest, jobs in New York again mean and spell "success."

"New York is the place where, from the executive's point of view, the big action is," says Ray. "It's the city where there's an interchange with people of great competence, and young people no longer walk away from a chance to work there just because it's New York. The majority of changes in senior level management take place in the orbit of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey — and the corners know it."

"Young people today are different from those of a generation ago, in that every corporate move becomes a family decision. Offer a 30-year-old man an excellent opportunity today, and if it requires a move to another place, he will say, 'That sounds interesting, but I'll have to talk it over with my wife.' Sometimes the school situation becomes a vital factor. Many things come into account that were never considered a generation ago, when I started out in business."

"However, there appears to be less of an inclination to 'stay put' these days — even after the family conference — than there was in the 1960s." The upward-mobility factor has moved back into the forefront and the young again recognize that a "certain amount of sacrifice" is demanded of wife and family for the sake of a young executive's career.

When the wife has a job that she likes, it is somewhat more difficult to lure her husband to a new position in another city.

"Occasionally we run into the executive who wants to know 'What are the opportunities for my wife?' in the new location to which he is considering moving. But it's still unusual. This is not a larger factor. Executive placement firms like ours," says Ray, "generally are moving men in the $50,000 and up category — and at that level, the wives still are not typically working on their own careers. Men in that salary bracket still tend to have wives who are extremely intelligent, but supportive of their husband's work, rather than preoccupied with their own."

That may sound like a chauvinist statement. But it reflects reality.

Equally realistic is the fact that "although women are in demand in business, well-qualified women are still difficult to find. It's still very much a minority situation with women. The chief trouble, of course, is that if a woman is going to hack it and cut it, she has to have the same flexibility and dedication and mobility in her job as a man — and that means giving up certain wife and family priorities."

Much has been written and said in recent years about the dangers of being a "workaholic."

However, Ray — an admitted "workaholic" — claims there is scarcely any way to avoid the disease, if you want to get to the top in the business world.

"The man or woman who's after the brass ring is ready to work nights, move anywhere, drive hard and be very demanding, not only of himself but of his employees. It's all part of the game. It's built into his nature. I think President Jimmy Carter is a workaholic. This trait may be physically punishing, but it's the way to achieving earnings and growth. It's the way to be if you want to be chief executive officer."

"We have to face it — you don't get to the penthouse by attending family picnics!"

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Inundated now by the tidal torrent of economic forecasts that in this election year has surged especially strong, we can quite easily be blinded to some realities, among them:

—Economic forecasters are as human as weathermen. Relying upon the latter's advice you sometimes leave your umbrella at home and get caught in a downpour. On the economic front, it happened in 1974.

—Unlike the weatherman, the economic forecaster seldom affixes a probability percentage to his reports. Albert Cox, head of Merrill Lynch Economics does, but most of the big names prefer to be seen as prophets.

—The motto of forecasters, as expressed by Walter Heller, the former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and now an adviser to Jimmy Carter, is: "We are often wrong, but never in doubt."

—Nevertheless, forecasters have almost no control over events, such as wars, droughts and frost in the citrus belt, nor over the minds of those who influence events, such as George Meany, the consumer and Jimmy Carter.

—Economists are more than just inclined toward the belief that if you forecast, forecast often. They practice it. When a forecast is upset by events, another is issued. He with the latest forecast, forecasts best.

—Rarely do economic forecasters apologize. If events do not cooperate, they take great pains to explain to those not as perceptive as they that, for example, if only consumers had spent logically, the forecast would have been right.

—Forecasters often are vain and cocky, especially when they have behind them an econometric model of the economy, one of those statistical compilations that allegedly reduces the reliance on subjective opinions.

—Econometric models often are subjective. The numbers used are often processed first — adjusted, weighted and subjected to various other "corrective" formulas.

—Rather than being objective, some economists have vested interests in their forecasts, especially if they work for certain banks, retail establishments or government offices that consider it bad form to challenge the efforts of the marketing department.

—Forecasts tend to be somewhat alike, partly because economists often belong to schools of thought, partly because there is security in numbers. The most daring forecaster is the one who comes out a month ahead of the pack.

—The consensus forecast often is remarkably accurate on large categories, such as the Gross National Product, but it shouldn't be forgotten that the consensus includes many forecasts at the extremes of high and low.

—Like many stock market analysts, economists are strong in forecasting a continuation of existing conditions, but often are weak at calling the turns.

—Relying on no skill at all, it is safe to conclude that the best of forecasters have blemishes on their records.

Taft Plans Law Work

CINCINNATI (AP) — Defeated U.S. Sen. Robert Taft Jr. said he plans to return to his law practice in Cincinnati when he leaves office Jan. 2 but said he is not ruling himself out of future political activity.

"You never make these decisions until you see what the opportunities and options are," said the Ohio Republican. He was defeated Nov. 2 by Cleveland Democrat Howard Metzenbaum.

"I don't know, it would depend on the circumstances," Taft said when asked if he might seek some other office. "I assume Jim Rhodes will be running for governor again. If so, I would back him again, probably," said Taft, asked if he might seek the office himself.

Taft said he will return to the law firm of Taft, Stettinius and Hollister, a firm founded by his late father, U.S. Sen. Robert A. Taft.

"But I'm not looking for a go-getter, Ralph. I'm looking for an already-gotter."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I dread the thought of cold weather. The big toes of my feet turn white with cold even when I protect them. My ears get so cold, sometimes I think they're going to fall off. I'm 34 and have no other physical problems.

Miss D. H., Ind.

Dear Miss H.:

Almost everyone, when exposed to cold weather, will develop milk blanching (whitening) of the skin of the tips of the fingers and the toes.

However, when this is associated with cramps, inability to walk and interference with normal functioning activities, it must not be overlooked. It is a circulatory problem that deserves investigation.

Many tests are available that can quickly determine any change from normal blood circulation. The pulse beat in the feet and legs is a good indication of circulation. A special "blood pressure" apparatus for the feet can register normal and abnormal pulsations of the blood vessels.

The free flow of blood can be studied by elevating the legs and noting how quickly blanching occurs. There are also X-ray studies of the blood circulation, using dyes and radio isotopes.

All of these can give your doctor a clear picture of what is causing your problem.

Did you once say that nuts are dangerous to children?

Mrs. B. I. R., Pa.

Dear Mrs. R.:

I did. Toddlers and young children, when nibbling nuts, sometimes become distracted with laughter and play, and sometimes inhale a small nut into their lungs. Peanuts, especially, are offenders because of their small size. When this happens, the peanut can cause severe inflammation of the lungs.

If this occurs, the peanut must be removed by bronchoscopy. Personally, I feel that the nutritional value of nuts is not sufficient to take this chance. Children below the age of six, in my opinion, should not be offered nuts.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:

Has the question ever been asked of us, as citizens of Pickaway County, "are we good neighbors?" I truly believe we are. There are many citizens of our community today who are alive, happy and productive because we were good neighbors and friends. We have saved their lives and they are still with us because we gave something of ourselves, something very precious and necessary to our own lives. That great and very personal gift we gave was — Blood.

It has been said before and I believe it will be said many more times of this outstanding community of Pickaway County, that we have those very generous and unselfish residents who always seem to recognize and are so concerned for their friends, family and neighbors that we have unfailingly taken care of our own. Thank God we have not had to say "we can't do it — let someone else do it for us."

The great need for blood is increasing drastically because we are demanding better health and better medical practices, and we have elevated the quality of health care. There are surgical corrections being performed today that were unheard of or even unthought of just a few years ago or even a few months ago. In our blood collection program we have many many willing volunteers, who give because they believe in our community and are proud to be a part of it and truly want to give and to help their friends. However, as is true of every good thing in life, we must keep up the good work, we must continue our responsibility, and we must inspire our close friends and neighbors to join with us so that they may get and enjoy that "good feeling" of giving something of themselves and at the same time help others who at the time of a crisis need us.

You know, someday, we may have someone very near and very dear who depends on us and needs us for that very precious commodity of blood and I know we don't want to let them down. I would like to encourage everyone to take a few minutes of their time, call the Red Cross for an appointment, and this coming Thursday, Dec. 16, give your blood. You'll be glad you did. You just never know whose life you may save.

Woman Commands Ohio Guard Unit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sandra Campbell is a wife, mother, career woman and now, a National Guard commander.

"Now I have a family, a career and a second career," Capt. Campbell said Saturday after she became the first woman commander of an Ohio National Guard unit.

She took charge of Headquarters Company of the 16th Brigade during ceremonies presided over by Col. Oliver Seffens of Westerville.

Capt. Campbell will be in charge of about 122 men, of which about 32 are officers and the remainder enlisted men.

Being a first is not unusual for Capt. Campbell. She also was the first woman to serve in the New York National Guard, having been appointed in 1973 by then-Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

During her two years in Albany, Capt. Campbell says she paved the way for other women who were looking for a good "second career" by actively recruiting more than 100 women through her job as race relations and equal opportunities officer.

"Everything I did was an influence on how I was accepted," she said. "Their acceptance came only after they saw I could do things well."

She said the 11 years she spent in the on how I was accepted," she said. "Their acceptance came only after they saw I could do things well."

"I felt safe applying to the National Guard in New York because I had previous military experience and the opportunity brought back the idea of a career in the military," she said.

She had to resign from the Army in 1971 when she became pregnant with her only child, David, who is now 5 years old. "At that time, women couldn't have a career and a family at the same time, so I resigned from active duty," Capt. Campbell said.

Capt. Campbell said her husband, Grant, assumes the responsibilities at their home when she is called away on active duty.

"He enjoys it," she said. "We were married when I was in the military, so he understands it is a part of my life."

Capt. Campbell also has a fulltime job with the Federal Highway Administration as a equal opportunities specialist.

A Page Of Opinion

Subtle Proposal

Responding to the Soviet Warsaw Pact proposal that the West join in an accord to ban first use of nuclear weapons is going to require some subtlety. As a matter of principle, the United States' policy all along has been that it will not initiate nuclear aggression.

But there is a difference between stating the intention and committing the nation on a formal accord. The fact that the Soviets made the proposal in the name of the Warsaw Pact is a warning that the Soviets hope to gain a propaganda advantage from it.

The records of Soviet and American treaty obligations are as different as night and day. The U.S. takes its treaty commitments seriously, the USSR does not. A formal accord signed by the U.S. could be the signal for the Warsaw Pact to begin probes with its superior conventional forces in Europe.

Trust is an important part of any international agreement. The record indicates caution on this proposal.

The Golden Age

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — Young, aggressive business executives take risks to make profits for their corporations.

Older, more experienced executives tend to proceed with caution, moving slowly, playing safe.

And that is why, for the first time in many years, men over the age of 45 or 50 are in demand for the top corporate positions today. The whiz kids will have to sit it out for awhile.

"We've had two recessions since the big Depression," says Paul R. Ray, head of the world's fifth largest executive search firm, "the most recent being in the last two years. Industry has not recovered from the shock. So, given the choice of a hotshot 35-year-old or an experienced 50-year-old, they're opting for the older man with experience."

"This is unusual. Age is usually a barrier. Traditionally, the younger, gutsier man takes precedence when the economy is moving, when the going is great. But we're feeling a decided desire for discretion and caution now. Companies were burned in the 1960s by young people in top positions who were aggressive, who had great educational credentials, but didn't have the 'seasoning' that was needed."

One might say it's the golden age for the golden-aged.

It won't last, of course. "The pendulum will swing back. The jury is still out as to whether we're coming to an end of our economic stall. When it's finished, big business will return to hiring the young comers who like change."

Meantime, in the marketplace, the young business executives are showing some decided differences from those of only a decade ago. In the '60s, it was popular to spurn big metropolitan-based corporate jobs — New York City, for example, was the pariah of posts, and young men concerned with the "quality of life" said no, thanks, you can keep your executive suite in Manhattan.

This year, although the "quality of life" is still of vital interest, jobs in New York again mean and spell "success."

"New York is the place where, from the executive's point of view, the big action is," says Ray. "It's the city where there's an interchange with people of great competence, and young people no longer walk away from a chance to work there just because it's New York. The majority of changes in senior level management take place in the orbit of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey — and the comers know it."

"Young people today are different from those of a generation ago, in that every corporate move becomes a family decision. Offer a 30-year-old man an excellent opportunity today, and if it requires a move to another place, he will say, 'That sounds interesting, but I'll have to talk it over with my wife.' Sometimes the school situation becomes a vital factor. Many things come into account that were never considered a generation ago, when I started out in business."

"However, there appears to be less of an inclination to 'stay put' these days' even after the family conference — than there was in the 1960s." Th upward-mobility factor has moved back into the forefront and the moving again recognize that a "certain amount of sacrifice" is demanded of wife and family for the sake of a young executive's career.

When the wife has a job that she likes, it is somewhat more difficult to lure her husband to a new position in another city.

"Occasionally we run into the executive who wants to know 'What are the opportunities for my wife?'" in the new location to which he is considering moving. But it's still unusual. This is not a larger factor. Executive placement firms like ours," says Ray, "generally are moving men in the $50,000 and up category — and at that level, the wives still are not typically working on their own careers. Men in that salary bracket still tend to have wives who are extremely intelligent, but supportive of their husband's work, rather than preoccupied with their own."

That may sound like a chauvinist statement. But it reflects reality.

Equally realistic is the fact that "although women are in demand in business, well-qualified women are still difficult to find. It's still very much a minority situation with women. The chief trouble, of course, is that if a woman is going to hack it and cut it, she has to have the same flexibility and dedication and mobility in her job as a man — and that means giving up certain wife and family priorities."

Much has been written and said in recent years about the dangers of being a "workaholic."

However, Ray — an admitted "workaholic" — claims there is scarcely any way to avoid the disease, if you want to get to the top in the business world.

"The man or woman who's after the brass ring is ready to work nights, move anywhere, drive hard and be very demanding, not only of himself but of his employees. It's all part of the game. It's built into his nature. I think President Jimmy Carter is a workaholic. This trait may be physically punishing, but it's the way to achieving earnings and growth. It's the way to be if you want to be chief executive officer."

"We have to face it — you don't get to the penthouse by attending family picnics!"

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Inundated now by the tidal torrent of economic forecasts that in this election year has surged especially strong, we can quite easily be blinded to some realities, among them:

—Economic forecasters are as human as weathermen. Relying upon the latter's advice you sometimes leave your umbrella at home and get caught in a downpour. On the economic front, it happened in 1974.

—Unlike the weatherman, the economic forecaster seldom affixes a probability percentage to his reports. Albert Cox, head of Merrill Lynch Economics does, but most of the big names prefer to be seen as prophets.

—The motto of forecasters, as expressed by Walter Heller, the former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, and now an adviser to Jimmy Carter, is: "We are often wrong, but never in doubt."

—Nevertheless, forecasters have almost no control over events, such as wars, droughts and frost in the citrus belt, nor over the minds of those who influence events, such as George Meany, the consumer and Jimmy Carter.

—Economists are more than just inclined toward the belief that if you forecast, forecast often. They practice it. When a forecast is upset by events, another is issued. He with the latest forecast, forecasts best.

—Rarely do economic forecasters

apologize. If events do not cooperate, they take great pains to explain to those not as perceptive as they that, for example, if only consumers had spent logically, the forecast would have been right.

—Forecasters often are vain and cocky, especially when they have behind them an econometric model of the economy, one of those statistical compilations that allegedly reduces the reliance on subjective opinions.

—Econometric models often are subjective. The numbers used are often processed first — adjusted, weighted and subjected to various other "corrective" formulas.

—Rather than being objective, some economists have vested interests in their forecasts, especially if they work for certain banks, retail establishments or government offices that consider it bad form to challenge the efforts of the marketing department.

—Forecasts tend to be somewhat alike, partly because economists often belong to schools of thought, partly because there is security in numbers. The most daring forecaster is the one who comes out a month ahead of the pack.

—The consensus forecast often is remarkably accurate on large categories, such as the Gross National Product, but it shouldn't be forgotten that the consensus includes many forecasts at the extremes of high and low.

—Like many stock market analysts, economists are strong in forecasting a continuation of existing conditions, but often are weak at calling the turns.

—Relying on the skill of all, it is safe to conclude that the best of forecasters have blemishes on their records.

Taft Plans Law Work

CINCINNATI (AP) — Defeated U.S. Sen. Robert Taft Jr. said he plans to return to his law practice in Cincinnati when he leaves office Jan. 2 but said he is not ruling himself out of future political activity.

"You never make these decisions until you see what the opportunities and options are," said the Ohio Republican. He was defeated Nov. 2 by Cleveland Democrat Howard Metzenbaum.

"I don't know, it would depend on the circumstances," Taft said when asked if he might seek some other office. "I assume Jim Rhodes will be running for governor again. If so, I would back him again, probably," said Taft, asked if he might seek the office himself.

Taft said he will return to the law firm of Taft, Stettinius and Hollister, a firm founded by his late father, U.S. Sen. Robert A. Taft.

Santa and the Giant Fighter

By Lucrece Beale

Synopsis: Billy meets an underground gnome who sends him to the moon cave in a Go-Bucket.

CHAPTER TWELVE THE MAGIC WORDS

The cracking, rattling, crashing clangor of the Go-Bucket dropping through the earth frightened the dragon nearly out of his wits. He shivered and shook. His eyes rolled back in his head and he nearly swallowed his long forked tongue.

Then he remembered that he was a dragon (a fierce looking dragon, at that, the giant had told him so) and he said to himself, "If I think like a dragon I will act like a dragon."

He thought quickly of all the dragons he had known and how they made rumbling noises like thunder and lashed with their tails and shot fire and smoke from their nostrils.

At that moment the Go-Bucket slam-banged into the cave. Billy the Giant Fighter jumped out and stood there waving his sword.

The dragon reared up on his hind legs. He thumped his ponderous tail and roared. He shut his eyes and took a great breath and went "A-a-a-h!"

Billy expected a sheet of flame to burst from the dragon's jaws but there was not a single spark. The dragon cleared his throat and tried again. He huffed and gargled and rumbled deep in his innards and went "A-a-a-h!" A teeny, tiny wisp of smoke drifted from his nostrils. That was all.

"You're not a fire breathing dragon at all," exclaimed Billy. "I'm not afraid of you!"

"I may not breathe fire," snarled the dragon, "but my tail can smash you to pieces!" He lashed out furiously with his sharp, pointed tail.

Billy threw his hands up to guard his face. He need not have bothered. The dragon's tail was not lashing back and forth. It was pumping up and down like a friendly puppy's and was doing no harm at all.

"Why, I don't believe you're even a dragon," taunted Billy. He poked the monster on the snout with his wooden sword.

"I am, too, a dragon," whimpered the poor beast. "But I've never been a very good dragon. All my friends went off to live in zoos. I did so hope if I did a good job guarding the moon someone would give me a home, too. But I am a disgrace. Who would ever want me?"

"You can go to Santa Land," said Billy. "Santa would love to have you there."

"Santa wouldn't want me," sniffed the dragon, "I'm no good to anyone."

"Help me free the moon," said Billy. "Then I bet Santa would give you a home forever because you will have saved Santa Land."

"The moon is sealed in this box," said the dragon. "Tell me what to do and I will gladly help."

Billy got his spelling book from his pocket. "Patrick Tweedleknies told me the magic words that would unseal the box are in this book," he sighed.

"Unfortunately, I can't read the words."

"Didn't you ever go to school?" asked the dragon in astonishment.

Billy blushed. "I didn't study very much. I wanted to be a giant fighter and I didn't think I had to study for that."

The dragon looked at the spelling book. "It's a very pretty book. It's probably filled with enough magic to open anything."

They scanned the pages together. Billy could read "Cat" and "Dog" and "Boy" and "Baby," he said the words out loud but the sealed box did not open. The dragon turned to the front cover. "What are these words written here?" he asked.

"That's my name," explained Billy. "I can read that easy." He pointed to each word and said, "William Henry Christopher Preserve!"

As he spoke the words a strange hissing whistled through the cave. The box holding the moon rocked and swayed and bounced and bobbed.

Suddenly the seal burst and the lid flew open.

Tomorrow: Goko in a Rage

McGough Eyes National GOP Post

CHICAGO (AP) — Ohio's Republican chairman, Kent B. McGough, is one of two midwest state GOP chairmen who reportedly plan a run to become national chairman.

At least that word came Sunday from a spokesman for seven chairmen from the midwest who held a closed door meeting at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

McGough and Indiana Chairman Thomas S. Milligan were described in a statement as intending to run for the party's top spot, vacated by Mary Louise Smith shortly after the defeat of President Ford Nov. 2.

Although both attended the meeting, neither would comment.

The statement said both men were advised to pursue "their own best interests."

McGough, who has the backing of Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes and other key Republicans, has been compared to former National Chairman Ray C. Bliss who helped the GOP recover following the devastating defeat in 1964 of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

The Ohio chairman has been described as a "nuts and bolts" chairman who works effectively behind the scenes to strengthen the party's candidates.

The midwest party chiefs did not endorse a candidate for national chairman, however. Seven of the 13 chairmen in the party's midwest region attended the conference.

The group's chairman gave a grave assessment of the party's current situation.

He said the party's image "stinks" and is too tied to business for any more than 20 per cent of the voters to identify with its policies.

"Our image as a party stinks—or maybe I shouldn't say that—at least it is not good," said William F. McLaughlin, who for eight years has chaired the Michigan GOP. "We have an image of a party that is not looking for solutions."

McLaughlin said he and the other state leaders traded information and endorsed plans by their two members to seek the national party chairmanship.

Besides that, McLaughlin said, the only thing the chairmen agreed to do was to do nothing but keep in touch prior to the Jan. 14-15 national committee meeting in Washington. He said there will be no regional strategy to endorse any candidate for national chairman.

"I have said for years" that the party is identified by the public as too close to business, McLaughlin said. "But we can elect a (Gov.-elect James R.) Thompson or a (Sen. Charles) Percy in Illinois," he added. Both men are considered ideologically moderates and charismatic vote-getters.

In a joint statement, the chairman said of McGough and Milligan: "We strongly encourage both of them to pursue their interests."

McLaughlin said the Midwest chairmen differ on whether the new national chairman should be a technician or a visible leader and prime spokesman.

"We talked about the fact that you don't become a major party overnight and it takes a long time. We talked about how elections are won at the local level," he added.

High school graduates represented two per cent of the 17-year-old population of 16,000 persons in 1870. The Bureau of the Census reports that in 1970, some 2.9 million or 76 per cent of the teenaged population graduated.

El Salvador, the smallest country in Central America, spends 32 per cent of its national budget on education.

Steel Production Increases Slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — Steel production climbed to 2.135 million net tons in the week ended Dec. 11, an increase of 2.2 per cent over the preceding week's 2.09 million net tons, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported Monday.

The rate of capacity utilization—calculated as the percentage of actual industry production over the capacity to produce—rose to 69.6 per cent from 68.1 per cent.

Estimated figures for the year to date showed production at 121.999 million net tons, an increase of 9.0 per cent from the 111.886 million net tons the previous year. The capacity utilization rate was 81.6 per cent, compared with 77.2 per cent a year earlier.

friendly puppy's and was doing no harm at all.

"Why, I don't believe you're even a dragon," taunted Billy. He poked the monster on the snout with his wooden sword.

"I am, too, a dragon," whimpered the poor beast. "But I've never been a very good dragon. All my friends went off to live in zoos. I did so hope if I did a good job guarding the moon someone would give me a home, too. But I am a disgrace. Who would ever want me?"

"You can go to Santa Land," said Billy. "Santa would love to have you there."

"Santa wouldn't want me," sniffed the dragon, "I'm no good to anyone."

"Help me free the moon," said Billy. "Then I bet Santa would give you a home forever because you will have saved Santa Land."

"The moon is sealed in this box," said the dragon. "Tell me what to do and I will gladly help."

Billy got his spelling book from his pocket. "Patrick Tweedleknoses told me the magic words that would unseal the box are in this book," he sighed.

"Unfortunately, I can't read the words."

"Didn't you ever go to school?" asked the dragon in astonishment.

Billy blushed. "I didn't study very much. I wanted to be a giant fighter and I didn't think I had to study for that."

The dragon looked at the spelling book. "It's a very pretty book. It's probably filled with enough magic to open anything."

They scanned the pages together. Billy could read "Cat" and "Dog" and "Boy" and "Baby." he said the words out loud but the sealed box did not open. The dragon turned to the front cover. "What are these words written here?" he asked.

"That's my name," explained Billy. "I can read that easy." He pointed to each word and said, "William Henry Christopher Preserver!"

As he spoke the words a strange hissing whistled through the cave. The box holding the moon rocked and swayed and bounced and bobbed.

Suddenly the seal burst and the lid flew open.

McGough Eyes National GOP Post

CHICAGO (AP) — Ohio's Republican chairman, Kent B. McGough, is one of two midwest state GOP chairmen who reportedly plan a run to become national chairman.

At least that word came Sunday from a spokesman for seven chairmen from the midwest who held a closed door meeting at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

McGough and Indiana Chairman Thomas S. Milligan were described in a statement as intending to run for the party's top spot, vacated by Mary Louise Smith shortly after the defeat of President Ford Nov. 2.

Although both attended the meeting, neither would comment.

The statement said both men were advised to pursue "their own best interests."

McGough, who has the backing of Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes and other key Republicans, has been compared to former National Chairman Ray C. Bliss who helped the GOP recover following the devastating defeat in 1964 of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

The Ohio chairman has been described as a "nuts and bolts" chairman who works effectively behind the scenes to strengthen the party's candidates.

The midwest party chiefs did not endorse a candidate for national chairman, however. Seven of the 13 chairmen in the party's midwest region attended the conference.

The group's chairman gave a grave assessment of the party's current situation.

He said the party's image "stinks" and is too tied to business for any more than 20 per cent of the voters to identify with its policies.

"Our image as a party stinks—or maybe I shouldn't say that—at least it is not good," said William F. McLaughlin, who for eight years has chaired the Michigan GOP. "We have an image of a party that is not looking for solutions."

McLaughlin said he and the other state leaders traded information and endorsed plans by their two members to seek the national party chairmanship.

Besides that, McLaughlin said, the only thing the chairmen agreed to do was to do nothing but keep in touch prior to the Jan. 14-15 national committee meeting in Washington. He said there will be no regional strategy to endorse any candidate for national chairman.

"I have said for years" that the party is identified by the public as too close to business, McLaughlin said. "But we can elect a (Gov.-elect James R.) Thompson or a (Sen. Charles) Percy in Illinois," he added. Both men are considered ideologically moderates and charismatic vote-getters.

In a joint statement, the chairman said of McGough and Milligan: "We strongly encourage both of them to pursue their interests."

McLaughlin said the Midwest chairmen differ on whether the new national chairman should be a technician or a visible leader and prime spokesman.

"We talked about the fact that you don't become a major party overnight and it takes a long time. We talked about how elections are won at the local level," he added.

High school graduates represented two per cent of the 17-year-old population of 16,000 persons in 1870. The Bureau of the Census reports that in 1970, some 2.9 million or 76 per cent of the teenaged population graduated.

El Salvador, the smallest country in Central America, spends 32 per cent of its national budget on education.

Steel Production Increases Slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — Steel production climbed to 2.135 million net tons in the week ended Dec. 11, an increase of 2.2 per cent over the preceding week's 2.09 million net tons, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported Monday.

The rate of capacity utilization—calculated as the percentage of actual industry production over the capacity to produce—rose to 69.6 per cent from 68.1 per cent.

Estimated figures for the year to date showed production at 121.999 million net tons, an increase of 9.0 per cent from the 111.886 million net tons the previous year. The capacity utilization rate was 81.6 per cent, compared with 77.2 per cent a year earlier.

Earl Lanman is improving from his recent surgery at Fayette Memorial Hospital over in Washington Court House. His frau Maxine reports that sharing the hospital room 103 with Earl is another local man, Carroll Sines from the Five Points community.

While he is recuperating grandpop Earl can reminisce about the happy birthday dinner he shared with granddaughter Nichole Dean. Three years ago on his birthday was when little Nichole arrived in this world. Jim and Karen Dean hosted the dinner in their home on Sunday before the actual birthday. Adding to the joy of the day were Marvin and Susan Spradlin and Jason from Five Points, Alan and Barbara Bradshaw and Renee, Aunt Evelyn Blue all of Jefferson Addition, grandmama Maxine, Michele Dean and naturally Penny the Dean dog who thinks human. Earl, by the way, underwent surgery on his birth date. How's that for a real bummer?

Taking two days to celebrate her 8th birthday was Tracey Wisecup. The reason it took two days was because she got to have a slumber party which has to be a favorite type party for younger girls these days. Having the time of their young lives were Tami Fullen, Kathy Tarbill, Stephanie Lemaster, Kathy McCafferty, Sherri and Shellie Hamilton and Anita Richardson. A Raggedy Ann birthday cake was enjoyed as well as hot dogs, pizza and all the rest of the "junk" that makes a party really super.

Volunteers Needed
The treats for the traditional community Christmas party sponsored by the American Legion Post 618 will be sacked at the firehouse or pavilion on Dec. 19 beginning at 1:30 p.m. and there is a need for volunteers to help. Just be there at the time given if interested in participating.

The Legion Post will also gratefully accept any donations toward the expenses of the annual treats.

If plans have gone according to schedule we should be basking in the balmy breezes of the Gulf of Mexico as you read this frivolity.

We take this opportunity to wish all our readers a very Merry Christmas and may you all be blessed with peace, happiness and good health.

Christmas Gift-Or Tax Deduction?

DEAR ABBY: Tell me if I'm wrong, but I do not appreciate receiving a card at Christmastime informing me that a gift in my name has been sent to the starving children of Bangladesh, the earthquake victims of Guatemala, or a handicapped war veteran.

I personally donate to many worthy causes, but I also send my friends and relatives Christmas gifts and cards.

When I get one of these "a-gift-in-your-name" certificates, I feel that I am being used as a tax deduction, which is not a gift at all. Care to comment?

DEAR USED: I disagree. In my opinion, one of the more civilized practices of recent years is donating to charity instead of giving extravagant

Blumenthal, Pfeiffer May Get Cabinet Slots

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — W. Michael Blumenthal, a specialist in international economics who served in the Johnson and Kennedy administrations, is President-elect Carter's choice to be treasury secretary, sources close to Carter say.

Carter also was said to be "almost certain" to name Jane Cahill Pfeiffer, a former vice president of IBM Corp., as commerce secretary.

The President-elect is holding further meetings at the governor's mansion here today with other Cabinet prospects. He said he will announce some Cabinet-level appointments at a news conference at 2:30 p.m. EST Tuesday.

Another Cabinet post which Carter is believed ready to fill is that of defense secretary. Harold Brown, a Pentagon official in the Johnson administration, has been rumored as the top contender for that post.

Carter previously announced he was naming Cyrus Vance, a Wall Street lawyer, to be secretary of state, and Thomas B. Lance, an Atlanta banker, to be his budget director.

Blumenthal, 50, is chairman of Bendix Corp., the diversified manufacturer based near Detroit. He was born in Germany and came to the United States in 1947, becoming a U.S. citizen five years later.

He was deputy assistant secretary of state for economic affairs in the Kennedy administration. He also was deputy special representative for trade negotiations with the rank of ambassador under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. He headed the Kennedy round of trade negotiations in Geneva from 1963 to 1967.

Blumenthal holds a doctorate in economics from Princeton University. He had figured in early speculation about Carter's Cabinet, with the Defense Department or the treasury mentioned as possible posts.

Mrs. Pfeiffer, 48, reported to be the leading prospect for the commerce post, was a White House fellow in 1966 and is a trustee of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Carter flew to Atlanta Sunday evening where he conferred with Vice President-elect Walter Mondale, who is participating in the interviews today, and chief talent scout Hamilton Jordan.

One of those meeting this week with Carter is Robert Embry Jr., commissioner of Baltimore's housing and community development. He is reportedly a prospect to be secretary of housing and urban development.

Carter spokesman Rex Granum said the President-elect still expects to name his entire Cabinet by the end of next week.

Blumenthal, Pfeiffer May Get Cabinet Slots

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — W. Michael Blumenthal, a specialist in international economics who served in the Johnson and Kennedy administrations, is President-elect Carter's choice to be treasury secretary, sources close to Carter say. Viola Myers is now permanently ensconced in her new mobile home at 507 S. Water. She sold her 104 S. Allen property to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Dunn and family who will move here from Stoutsville.

Earl Lanman is improving from his recent surgery at Fayette Memorial Hospital over in Washington Court House. His frau Maxine reports that sharing the hospital room 103 with Earl is another local man, Carroll Sines from the Five Points community.

While he is recuperating grandpop Earl can reminisce about the happy birthday dinner he shared with granddaughter Nichole Dean. Three years ago on his birthday was when little Nichole arrived in this world. Jim and Karen Dean hosted the dinner in their home on Sunday before the actual birthday. Adding to the joy of the day were Marvin and Susan Spradlin and Jason from Five Points, Alan and Barbara Bradshaw and Renee, Aunt Evelyn Blue all of Jefferson Addition, grandmama Maxine, Michele Dean and naturally Penny the Dean dog who thinks human. Earl, by the way, underwent surgery on his birth date. How's that for a real bummer?

Taking two days to celebrate her 8th birthday was Tracey Wisecup. The reason it took two days was because she got to have a slumber party which has to be a favorite type party for younger girls these days. Having the time of their young lives were Tami Fullen, Kathy Tarbill, Stephanie Lemaster, Kathy McCafferty, Sherri and Shellie Hamilton and Anita Richardson. A Raggedy Ann birthday cake was enjoyed as well as hot dogs, pizza and all the rest of the "junk" that makes a party really super.

Volunteers Needed

The treats for the traditional community Christmas party sponsored by the American Legion Post 618 will be sacked at the firehouse or pavilion on Dec. 19 beginning at 1:30 p.m. and there is a need for volunteers to help. Just be there at the time given if interested in participating.

The Legion Post will also gratefully accept any donations toward the expenses of the annual treats.

If plans have gone according to schedule we should be basking in the balmy breezes of the Gulf of Mexico as you read this frivolity.

We take this opportunity to wish all our readers a very Merry Christmas and may you all be blessed with peace, happiness and good health.

Christmas Gift-Or Tax Deduction?

DEAR ABBY: Tell me if I'm wrong, but I do not appreciate receiving a card at Christmastime informing me that a gift in my name has been sent to the starving children of Bangladesh, the earthquake victims of Guatemala, or a handicapped war veteran.

I personally donate to many worthy causes, but I also send my friends and relatives Christmas gifts and cards.

When I get one of these "a-gift-in-your-name" certificates, I feel that I am being used as a tax deduction, which is not a gift at all. Care to comment?

USED IN DURHAM, N.C.

DEAR USED: I disagree. In my opinion, one of the more civilized practices of recent years is donating to charity instead of giving extravagant

THE OPERATION of the Butler Kan-Sun Continuous Flow Grain Dryer is simple, yet efficient. In the drawing, (1) wet grain is loaded into the top holding bin and moves by gravity over the special roof cone into the grain columns. (2) The grain moves downward, past the plenum or heat chamber. Here, each kernel is surrounded by heated air, in a "super dry" condition, and moisture is drawn from it. (3) As the grain continues downward and passes the cooling chamber, air is drawn over the dry kernels to reduce grain temperature to a safe degree for storage. After proper cooling, the grain is moved by (4) the sweep assembly to the center discharge and (5) conveyed by auger out of the dryer. Butler Kan-Sun Batch and continuous Flow Dryers are sold and serviced by Van Camp Agri-Systems Division.

Make Plans Now

Planning. You need to do it now. We need to do it now. October and November were our busiest months yet. A small ad we ran in October got a tremendous response! Why? Because the crop was there and there was no place to put it.

That ad completely cleaned out our inventory and all the inventory we could buy from other Ohio Butler Agri-Builders. Some customers decided to wait until spring, as equipment selection narrowed and completion dates lengthened.

Let's get together now and begin plans for next year's needs. Starting right now has several benefits.

You have the time to thoroughly discuss the equipment selection for your particular operation is very important. We can make proposals and you have the time to think about and question them, and ask for modifications.

Winter orders can take advantage of manufacturers winter incentive discount plans. Combined orders get full load freight discounts and avoid special handling charges.

The projects can be scheduled and built with your particular needs in mind. This is especially beneficial if you decide to perform part of the necessary construction yourself.

The system is complete and ready for grain when the crop is ready for harvest. This means more profit in your pocket.

So put it all together. Considering a project now can give you the time to thoroughly discuss it; it can let you take advantage of winter incentive pricing; and it can give you proper construction and harvest scheduling. All these things can help you make the decision now that can put you in the driver's seat next fall.

THIS BUTLER Kan Sun Dryer is in operation this fall at Skinner Brothers farm on Locust Grove-Dublin Hill Road. It will dry 365 bushels per hour at 10 points removal, or 500 bushels per hour at five points removal.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State government tells everyone else to make buildings accessible to the handicapped, and should practice what it preaches, Gov. James A. Rhodes, in effect, said Monday.

He ordered the public works department to make a study on an elevator system that would enable the state's handicapped citizens to reach the Statehouse rotunda in wheel chairs.

He called the rotunda, which now can be reached only on four stairways leading up from the first floor, a "symbol of state government" which should be accessible to every citizen of the state.

Mansfield Against Oil Firm Breakups

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retiring Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield has had second thoughts about proposals for breaking up the big oil companies and starting a national health care system.

Mansfield, interviewed Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he would like to reconsider the vote he once cast in favor of a resolution calling for the splitting of the oil companies. He did not elaborate.

He also said he has come around to President-elect Carter's view that the country cannot afford to create a health care system all at once. He now would like to see a system phased in over a period of years, he said.

"When I looked at the cost of putting it into operation immediately — $50 billion-$60 billion — I had some second thoughts," he said.

The Montana Democrat also talked about American policy toward Korea, from which he has advocated that U.S. troops be withdrawn. He said he favored a gradual withdrawal, coupled with a continuing American "aerial umbrella" against aggression.

Mansfield also endorsed a vigorous congressional investigation of those members who allegedly received cash from South Korean Tongsun Park. "We ought to hold him to account," he said.

Meanwhile, the new House majority leader said a House Ethics Committee investigation of the alleged South Korean attempts to buy influence in Congress will be neither a whitewash nor a witchhunt.

Rep. Jim Wright told another panel of television interviewers that the committee would conduct its own full-scale inquiry into the charges, which are being investigated by the Justice Department.

The Fort Worth, Tex., Democrat was on CBS' "Face the Nation."

He denied that it was a problem for the House Democrats that their two other top leaders received favors or campaign contributions from Park.

Park picked up the tab for a birthday party thrown for Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, the next House speaker, three years ago.

Park also contributed $5,150 legally from 1970 to 1974 to the campaigns of Rep. John Brademas of Indiana, the new majority whip.

O'Neill has said he did not know Park was paying for the party.

Rhodes Supports Handicapped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes announced Monday that he ordered each of his cabinet agencies to hire at least one handicapped worker.

He made the statement as he spoke at the opening of the Ohio White House Conference on Handicapped at the state fairgrounds, while urging county and local governments to hire more handicapped workers.

"If government agencies will get behind the policy of hiring handicapped workers, we can help these Ohioans to realize their full potential as human beings," Rhodes said. "And if government employers increase their commitment too the handicapped, employers in the private sector will expand their hiring of the handicapped also."

Twenty-four handicapped persons are in training programs conducted by the Bureau of Employment Services after which they will serve as employment counselors in state offices around Ohio, helping other handicapped workers find jobs.

The conference is intended to provide an assessment of problems of physically and mentally handicapped persons, to generate awareness of these problems, and to make recommendations to the President and Congress to improve the quality of life for handicapped individuals.

'Rudolph' Composer Recalls Origin

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Marks remembers a visit to a Japanese bath in Tokyo, four or five years ago.

"... And there you have these girls who give you a bath. And I was having this bath and this girl was scrubbing my back, and what do I hear? Dum di da-dum di dum-dum. And I turned to her and I says, 'What are you singing?' "She looked at me in utter scorn. 'Don't you know (squeaky mock-Japanese) "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer"?"

Does Johnny Marks know that song? He wrote it — 27 years and 113 million records ago.

"I don't think there's ever been a record that catapulted itself like that one," muses the trim, 67-year-old composer. "It's the only one I know of that became No. 1 on the country charts, on the pop charts, in the jukeboxes."

Johnny Marks became an overnight hero to millions in 1949, though few knew his name. He's a hero today, still behind the scenes. Millions will hear his biggest hit in countless tongues. Millions will see three Christmas specials on TV — Johnny Marks wrote all the music. Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer was just telecast for the 13th year in a row. It was 1948. Tin Pan Alley. Nearly a decade earlier, Robert L. May had written the "Rudolph" story in Chicago as a Christmas giveaway for his employer, Montgomery Ward and Co.

"I wrote it," recalls Johnny Marks, "easily one of the worst songs ever written. It was just terrible. I threw that away, and the following year, I rewrote it. And that is the song you know today."

"I can sing it for you. The first one went, 'Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer, had a very shiny nose.' But that's a terrible tune. (It only resembles the well-known smash hit.)

"Now what happened is, a year later, I'm walking along the street, it's never happened before, I started to hum. Dum di da-dum di dum-dum. You see, what I'm doing is inverting the notes, instead of going down, I'm going up."

Out went demonstration records — to Dinah Shore, Bing Crosby "all the top artists of the day, including Gene Autry. What's great about this, I did not know this man (Autry), I had no relation with him."

"He got the record at his office, played it over, and took it home with seven other songs to pick four for his next record session.

"He decided not to do 'Rudolph.' He said, 'I didn't feel it fit my image.' But his wife said, 'Gee, I think "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" is one of the greatest songs I ever heard. Put it on one side of the record for me, put what you think are the hits on the other.'

"And of course, the rest is history."

Johnny Marks looks and plays the part. Trim white goatee, mellow cigar. He taps his foot as he hums through a tune. Home is in Greenwich Village, "a little yard in the back." His office probably hasn't changed much in the

Jamaican Election Hit By Violence

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The most violent political campaign in Jamaican history neared its end today, and the government banned election-eve political meetings following the shooting of one candidate and a mob attack on another.

In a final telecast before the election of a new Parliament Wednesday, Prime Minister Michael Manley paid tribute to the wounded candidate from his People's National Party (PNP) and many other "unsung heroes" he said had died as a result of political violence.

Police said Ferdie Neita, an automobile mechanic, was shot in the side as he was helping put up a speaker's stand in Spanish Town. He was reported in serious condition, and the police said they picked up eight persons from the local office of the anti-government Jamaica Labor Party (JLP) for questioning.

The JLP, which is headed by Edward Seaga, reported that a mob surrounded a car in which Colin Williamson, one of its candidates, and two supporters were riding, riddled it with bullets and firebombed it. The JLP said Williamson was not hurt but one of his companions was hacked with a machete and critically injured.

The security forces announced that a ban on motorcades and marches had been extended to political meetings. Manley said the ban was ordered "to ease the pressure on manpower" and to enable the police and the army to deploy for the balloting.

The British Commonwealth island in the Caribbean has been under a state of emergency since June because of mounting criminal and political violence. Seaga claimed Sunday that nine of his men had been killed since the campaign began three weeks ago, and at least four or five of Manley's supporters have been reported killed. Dozens of supporters of both parties have been injured.

Jamaican Election Hit By Violence

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The most violent political campaign in Jamaican history neared its end today, and the government banned election-eve political meetings following the shooting of one candidate and a mob attack on another.

In a final telecast before the election of a new Parliament Wednesday, Prime Minister Michael Manley paid tribute to the wounded candidate from his People's National Party (PNP) and many other "unsung heroes" he said had died as a result of political violence.

Police said Ferdie Neita, an automobile mechanic, was shot in the side as he was helping put up a speaker's stand in Spanish Town. He was reported in serious condition, and the police said they picked up eight persons from the local office of the anti-government Jamaica Labor Party (JLP) for questioning.

The JLP, which is headed by Edward Seaga, reported that a mob surrounded a car in which Colin Williamson, one of its candidates, and two supporters were riding, riddled it with bullets and firebombed it. The JLP said Williamson was not hurt but one of his companions was hacked with a machete and critically injured.

The security forces announced that a ban on motorcades and marches had been extended to political meetings. Manley said the ban was ordered "to ease the pressure on manpower" and to enable the police and the army to deploy for the balloting.

The British Commonwealth island in the Caribbean has been under a state of emergency since June because of mounting criminal and political violence. Seaga claimed Sunday that nine of his men had been killed since the campaign began three weeks ago, and at least four or five of Manley's supporters have been reported killed. Dozens of supporters of both parties have been injured.

The Parent-Teacher Conference Day was a success, according to the views of many associated at Westfall. A special commendation to the SAE students who assisted parents and teachers throughout the day is most appropriate. However, our offices would be quick to indicate that parents or interested students are more than welcome to continue visits with teachers, counselors, etc.

Visits from Lincoln Technical College and Columbus Business University representatives are being set up for interested students.

Now is the time to pick up and begin preparing Parent Confidential Statements for the college year 1977-1978. Parents are welcome to request these forms or students may pick up an application from Mr. Greer.

Have a joyous holiday season during the coming weeks—don't forget the real reason for Christmas. Until next time, have enough determination to make each day better than yesterday.

Judge Can't Act Alone

CINCINNATI (AP) — The 1st Ohio Court of Appeals has ruled that a common pleas judge cannot drop the specifications for capital punishment in a murder charge without first consulting the prosecutor.

As a result, Curtis Duane Palmore, Cincinnati, must stand trial again for aggravated murder and aggravated robbery in the 1974 robbery slaying of Charles Pomerant, 17, a service station attendant.

The unanimous decision by the three-judge appellate panel Monday resulted from an appeal filed by Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon Leis Jr.

The appellate court ruled that Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Gilbert Bettman used "extraordinary procedure" in handling the Curtis Duane Palmore case which raised the "issue of discriminatory application of the death penalty."

Palmore was one of three men convicted separately in the case.

Leis appealed after Bettman decided April 21, 1975, to remove the specification of death sentence attached to the charge of aggravated murder and aggravated robbery. Pomerant was sentenced to life imprisonment after pleading guilty.

Judge Bettman said he based his action on a rule which allows a judge to remove the specification "in the interests of justice." Bettman said he also received information that Palmore was not the "trigger man."

However, another defendant, William Bell Mascus, 22, tried later, testified Palmore had the gun when he and defendant Jerry Jackson, 22, ran from the service station.

Seniors Win Turkey Bowl

By MELODY WARD
Westfall High School held the third annual Turkey Bowl on November 23. Despite frigid temperatures, a large crowd stayed to observe the exciting football game between the juniors and the seniors. The seniors were victorious — by a score of 12-6.

Many feel the game was so exciting because of the superior coaching staffs. Coaching the juniors was Rob Donohoe, history teacher and cross country coach. Donohoe had these comments on the game, "The juniors played an excellent game but still had trouble retaining the seniors' speed." The only junior touchdown was scored by Carey Puckett.

Mark Hosler, band director, was the senior coach, substituting for John Tatman, the usual senior coach. Hosler said, "The seniors deserved to win because they played a superior game." The two senior touchdowns were made by Rick Stillings and Greg Damron.

Another added attraction to the game was the fact that three girls played for the juniors. They were Ellen Pennington, Debbie Stover, and Paula Horn.

Mustang Country congratulates the seniors on their fine victory.

Chris Evert Named Athlete Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — As Chris Evert says, someone always comes out of the woodwork in an Olympic year, sweeping national media awards for their prowess from the professionals. This was an Olympic year, but Chris Evert beat the Olympians in being named Sports Illustrated's 1976 athlete of the year.

The award was announced Monday as Sports Illustrated's Athlete of the Year, but Miss Evert beat out all of the men, too — amateurs and professionals. In fact, no man was in the final seven considered by SI's editors.

"Women are taking over the world," Miss Evert said.

She is the first woman to own the honor outright since it was instituted in 1954. And she and Billie Jean King, who shared the award with UCLA basketball Coach John Wooden in 1972, are the only tennis players to be named.

"I think it's great," said Miss Evert. "It's great for tennis, and it's great for women. It shows we're appreciated by the press and the public."

Miss Evert, just a week shy of 22, has been in the forefront of international tennis since she was 16. For the last three years, she has been the top-ranked player in the world, winning Wimbledon, the United States, French and Italian opens twice each, and the Virginia Slims championships three times. She also earned about $375,000 in tournaments, plus whatever the lode from World Team Tennis and endorsements might be.

"It was my best year," Miss Evert said.

She conceded that she does not have the natural athletic ability attributed to Ms. King and Evonne Goolagong. "But I am strong mentally. Concentration is my biggest asset on the tennis court," she said.

Miss Evert said she also got a big boost from working with Tony Roche of Australia, coach of the WTT Phoenix Racquets.

"He's proven he is the best doubles player in the world — he and John Newcombe have won every major doubles title," she said. "And he taught me to be a good doubles player."

Miss Evert and Martina Navratilova teamed for the Wimbledon title, her first major doubles crown. "I loved it. It was a new thrill for me."

Few thrills in tennis are left for Chris after only six years of international competition, but she says she wants to remain No. 1 and enjoy tennis.

Colts, Steelers Set For Playoff Collision

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It is, in every sense of the word, the meeting of the irresistible force and the immovable object.

On this side, the Baltimore Colts, who pushed around almost everything in their path en route to the American Conference East title. They scored a mammoth 417 points, 58 of them last Sunday in the division clincher.

On the other side, the Pittsburgh Steelers, who can push back better than any other club in the National Football League, who reeled off nine straight victories — five by shutout. They allowed a minuscule 138 points including 28 in that astonishing streak to take the AFC Central title.

Something's got to give. The Colts, who gave the last time this situation arose, can look at the Steelers and say: "We know how you feel, guys."

A year ago it was the Colts who had just completed a ninegame streak. They roared into Pittsburgh and got beaten 28-10 in an AFC playoff opener. Now it's the Steelers who have the nine-game run on the line, and they're the ones on the road for the opener.

"We've been in the playoffs for nine weeks," said Coach Chuck Noll, meaning that the Steelers were always on the brink of extinction. "It's that same kind of feeling. Now everyone has it."

Baltimore Ted Marchibroda remembers what it was like last year. "That's why it's so unbelievable," he said of Pittsburgh's job. "The Steelers won six of those games with a rookie (Mike Kruczek) at quarterback, too. Sometimes you really don't know how good you are until you have to show it all."

The playoffs begin Saturday with Washington at Minnesota in the National Conference and New England at Oakland in the AFC. After Sunday's Oakland-Baltimore game, Los Angeles is at Dallas in a rematch of the 1975 NFC title game, won by Dallas 37-7.

Washington is returning to the playoffs after a one-year absence. The Patriots are in their first since 1963, when they were the Boston Patriots. They were a part of the American Football League and they were buried 51-10 by San Diego in the AFL title game.

Pacific 8 Expansion Scheduled

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There was joy in Arizona after the mighty Pacific-8 cordially invited the University of Arizona and Arizona State to join the prestigious athletic conference.

"We're naturally very delighted with the invitation," said Dr. John P. Schaefer, Arizona president. "I personally believe this offer is a major opportunity to the University of Arizona in terms of its athletic programs."

And at Arizona State: "Naturally we are very pleased," said school President John Schwada. "We feel we will be a valuable addition to that conference and we will give the invitation full consideration."

The invitations, relayed Monday by UCLA Chancellor Charles Young, were saddled with some conditions, but they appear reasonable. Young said the invitations would be open until May 1, 1977, the next scheduled conference meeting.

The move was expected for some time, although there was opposition from northern schools who apparently feared that if Arizona and California campuses teamed up, their six votes could shift the balance of power. The "Pac-10" will include, in addition to the Arizona schools, UCLA, Southern California, Stanford, California, Oregon, Oregon State, Washington and Washington State.

California's athletic director, Dave Maggard, said the invitations probably saved the conference.

"There might have been a breakup of the conference," he said after the decision was announced. "The threat of USC pulling out was very real, and UCLA might have followed suit."

Notre Dame Climbs In Ratings

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

It hasn't taken the Notre Dame basketball team long to establish itself as this year's collegiate giant-killers. The Fighting Irish set about correcting their early-season non-ranking in this year's first game and they edged out highly-regarded Maryland on the Terrapins court. That earned Digger Phelps' crew a No. 7 ranking in the Associated Press nationwide poll of sports writers and broadcasters. Then the Irish really went to work.

Last Saturday, Notre Dame upset UCLA 66-63 at Pauley Pavilion. That victory earned the 5-0 Irish five first-place votes, 601 points and a No. 4 ranking in this week's poll. The Bruins fell from third to ninth place.

Leading the voting for the third straight week was Michigan. The Wolverines, 3-0, collected 34 first-place votes and 850 points. Michigan beat Vanderbilt 97-76 in its only action last week.

Marquette was second in the balloting, 122 points behind Michigan. The Warriors grabbed a pair of first-place votes for their 4-0 record which includes three victories last week.

Kentucky, 4-0 through Sunday's games, moved up a notch to third. The Wildcats received four No. 1 ballots and 662 points.

San Francisco, whose 8-0 record is the best of any Top 20 team, captured fifth place in the poll with 473 points. The Dons won the Utah Classic over the weekend.

Completing the Top 10 were No. 6 Cincinnati, with a 5-0 record; seventh-ranked Alabama, which advanced three spots despite not playing a game; 7-0 Arizona, which grabbed eighth place, and 10th-ranked Wake Forest.

Wake Forest's Atlantic Coast rival, North Carolina, was voted No. 11 in the nation. The Tar Heels were followed in the voting by Nevada-Las Vegas, which dropped a 100-96 contest to Utah and subsequently fell from fifth to 12th; No. 13 Clemson; 14th-rated Maryland and surprising Syracuse, which came in 15th.

Defending national champion Indiana was beaten at home by Kentucky and fell from 13th to 16th place. The Hoosiers were slightly ahead of No. 17 Louisville; 18th-ranked Southern Illinois; No. 19 Arkansas and 20th-ranked St. John's of New York.

Westfall's seventh and eighth grade cagers both came up with big wins over Zane Trace Monday with the seventh grade Mustangs grabbing a 29-21 decision and the eighth grade squad copping a 36-38 verdict.

Tigers Face Two SCOL Tilts This Week

The Tigers of Circleville will see double South Central Ohio League action this week when they travel to Miami Trace tonight and then make the long trek to Hillsboro on Friday.

Circleville will be out to run its league record to 2-1 against the Panthers tonight after losing to Wilmington last Friday. The Red and Black Roundballers had opened league play with a win over Greenfield. They now sport a 3-1 overall mark.

Miami Trace will be going into the fray with a 3-1 overall record and a 2-1 mark in league play. The Panthers defeated Hillsboro and Madison Plains but lost to Wilmington in league action and topped Lancaster in a non league fray.

Trace is a big veteran ball club with a high powered offense. They are led by All-SCOL Art Schlichter, 6-foot-3, and Dan Gifford.

They are a fast break team but will also run some weave pattern offense when needed. The Panthers are primarily a man to man defensive team with the guards pressing all over the court. They will also use some 2-1-2 zone in certain situations.

On Friday night the Tigers will go against a Hillsboro team that is 1-3 overall but 0-3 in league play. In SCOL encounters, the Indians have lost to Wilmington, Miami Trace and dropped an overtime decision to Greenfield.

Hillsboro's offense is built around

All-SCOL Tim Fuller, 6-foot-3, who is also the league's leading scorer. It is a veteran all senior starting five with four of the five being starters on last year's squad.

They will operate a passing game offense in an attempt to set up screens for the good shots.

It will be mostly a 2-1-2 zone defense employed by the Indians with some man to man coverage and a full court press.

Circleville will be out to maintain its offensive and defensive averages. They are getting 63.5 points a game while holding the opposition to 55.5 markers per contest.

They have been a strong second half attested to by the fact that they have outscored their opponents by 10 points in the final two periods.

The tough man to man defense of the Tigers has really put the pressure on the opposition causing them to average 25.5 turnovers a game.

Frank Merrill has been hitting a hot 67 per cent from the field netting 85 per cent at the foul line while leading the team in assists. Tom Taylor is shooting 76 per cent from the charity stripe and along with Eric Pontious is one of the defensive leaders.

Brent Wright is shooting 60 per cent from the field, 74 per cent from the free throw line and hauling down an average of 10 rebounds a game to lead the team.

Toren Bensonhaver is averaging six rebounds a game and hitting 78 per cent at the foul line while Rusty Holbrook has only averaged one turnover a game to lead the team in this department.

The Tigers will start: Merrill and Taylor at the guards, Wright at center and Bensonhaver and Tim Milstead at forwards.

Wildcats Claw South Carolina

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

The losing coach, who should have been shellshocked, kind of expected his team to get blown out Monday night. It was the winning coach who was surprised.

"We're better than I thought. I've underestimated them and they've given me a pleasant surprise," Kentucky's Joe Hall said after his third-ranked Wildcats buried South Carolina 98-67.

"I have felt all along Kentucky will be ranked No. 1 before the season is over. They certainly looked the part tonight," said South Carolina's Frank McGuire, who isn't used to being treated so badly, and certainly not on his home court.

The only other member of The Associated Press' Top Twenty to see action was No. 15 Syracuse, which trounced Penn State 101-63 behind little Jimmy Williams' 20 points.

Kentucky, 5-0, jumped to a 10-0 lead and South Carolina was never able to recover. At the half it was 52-34 and at one point in the second half the Wildcats led by a whopping 35 points. Jack Givens paced Kentucky with 28 points and Mike Phillips added 23.

"This group of juniors has been playing together for the third year now and they've matured," Hall said. "We've been dominating some very good teams."

Jackie Gilloon topped 1-3 South Carolina with 17 points and freshman center Jim Graziano had 16.

The victory extended Kentucky's winning streak to 15, longest of any major college in the nation. The loss was the worst for the Gamecocks on their home court since they moved into the Carolina Coliseum eight years ago. The greatest margin of defeat previously was seven points.

Williams enabled 7-1 Syracuse to pull away from Penn State with an eight-point burst midway through the first half.

Elsewhere:

—Army boosted its record to 6-0, its best start in eight years, by routing Kings Point 76-52.

—Unbeaten Dayton placed four men in double figures and turned back New Orleans 82-68.

—Wichita State held off Long Beach State 83-78 behind Bob Elmore's 22 points.

—Freshman Dean Uthoff scored 22 points and grabbed 19 rebounds as Iowa State downed California 78-70.

—Sophomore Carl McPipe scored 25 points as Nebraska walloped Northwest Missouri 88-53.

—Houston, which beat Lamar by 10 points earlier in the season, doubled its pleasure and downed the Cardinals 103-83 although Otis Birdsong, one of the nation's scoring leaders with a 33.3 average, managed only 17 on 6-for-21 shooting.

—Matt Hicks scored 26 points to lead Northern Illinois over Wisconsin 81-57.

—Jim Wood's lay-up with 18 seconds left enabled Georgia Tech to nip St. Francis, Pa., 74-72.

—Unbeaten Rice won its sixth straight, trimming Northern Colorado 76-57 as Frank Thomas and Elbert Darden split 42 points.

—Unbeaten Illinois survived a late scare and nipped Cleveland State 72-70.

Bruce Coslet Retires; Bengals Need End

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals are in the market for a tight end after Bruce Coslet announced he was retiring from professional football.

"With Bruce's retirement that means tight end will be one of our priorities in the draft," said Cincinnati General Manager Paul Brown Monday after the eight-year-veteran announced his decision.

Coslet's departure leaves the Bengals with only one remaining tight end, Bob Trumpy.

"I've enjoyed playing for the Bengals," said Coslet, "but I talked it over with my wife and we feel I should devote full time to my contracting business."

A frequent starter and special team leader, the 30-year-old Coslet joined the Bengals in 1969 after graduating from the University of the Pacific.

During his career, he had 45 pass receptions for 556 yards and nine touchdowns.

"He gave us everything he had for eight seasons and we appreciate it," Paul Brown said. "He was very popular with his teammates and is a class person in every respect."

Meanwhile, the Bengals front office declined to speculate on the future of Bernard Jackson, who asked to be traded following the Bengals final game.

"I want out. My future isn't here," said Jackson, who was demoted after starting 23 straight games at defensive back.

Embittered over losing his job to second-year man Marvin Cobb, the 26-year-old Jackson said he would like the Bengals to trade him to the Seattle Seahawks.

Mike Brown, assistant general manager, said he had not yet talked to Jackson about the situation and would have no comment before going over the situation with the five-year veteran.

Jackson, who had one interception this year, said he felt the coaching staff soured on him after the Bengals 28-27 loss to Baltimore in the second game this season.

"Personally, I think they put some unjust blame on me," Jackson said. "Right before the Tampa Bay game 'Tiger' (Bengals Coach Bill Johnson) called me in and told me he didn't think I was a factor in our secondary. At first, I thought he was trying to psyche me up. Then I saw what was happening. I resigned myself that I wasn't going to play here."

Cincinnati traded Jackson and linebacker Tim Kearney to Detroit before the 1975 season. But the trade was voided when Jackson flunked his physical because of a knee problem. He returned to Cincinnati, won a starting job as safety, and had his best pro season. His five interceptions were second only to Ken Riley's six and he was the team's top kickoff specialist with a 23.5 average.

Sparky Not Unhappy Over Lack Of Trades

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson said he's satisfied to face the 1977 season in the quest for a third straight World Championship without trading for new players.

"If we don't trade, fine," said Anderson, sizing up the National League's Western Division.

He said San Diego improved itself the most in the division with new players.

"And that's great for us," Anderson said.

"When the lesser teams get better it means we will have to win less games to win it. The division will be more even. When you have to flirt with 100 wins it's a tough job. But 92 or 93? I know we can win that many."

Big Quinella Payoff At Latonia Monday

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Thirteen bettors collected $2,380 each in the highest quinella payoff of the year at Latonia on Monday night.

The payoff came in the sixth race on the 3-4 combination of Roman Circle, a 100-1 shot finishing first, and Top Push, second, at 14-1.

Vapor's Trail won the $3,900 featured eighth race and paid $25.80, $11.60 and $6.80. Miracle Judge placed, $6.20 and $6.60 and T.V. Knight, third, $5.60.

The 5-4 daily double of Errards Challenge and Proper Position paid $79.40 and the crowd of 3,368 bet $431,798.

Illinois is still unbeaten on the basketball court, but Coach Lou Henson is glum anyway.

"We played a very poor game," Henson said Monday night after the Fighting Illini defeated Cleveland State 72-70 in a nonconference match.

In the only other action involving a Big Ten team, Wisconsin took an 81-57 beating from Northern Illinois.

Your Views On Horoscope Television

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR WEDNESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Be patient if temporarily stymied in some project in which you are involved. New factors seem to be up for consideration. Keep eyes and ears open.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Do not dash headlong into activities no matter how much is expected of you or how much you wish to accomplish. There are "gray" areas to study well.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Don't wait too long before makin' up your mind in matters where the time element is important. Highly favored: intellectual pursuits, travel and communications.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Some influences are friendly; others not. The latter could lead you into careless thinking and action if you are not on guard. Give thought to past experience.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Some news you receive may not please but curb your innate tendency to "explode" when annoyed. And DON'T vent your ill-humor on associates.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Stars indicate a fine harvest from past endeavors. Reward may come in the form of a promotion - with increased prestige.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Satisfactory gains indicated through carrying on with present operations, but day will not be good for starting new ventures.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): You may encounter a few baffling situations: Remain undisturbed neither over anxious nor careless. Avoid excesses and extremes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): An auspicious day. Seek solutions to pending problems through conferences, consultation with experts. Be concise and efficient without stepping on anyone's toes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Mixed influences, mixed possibilities. How you react to opposition and unexpected obstacles will tell the tale.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Especially favored now: all creative efforts (writings especially), travel, meetings of purpose. Earnings can be increased through any of these avenues.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Stars now promise benefits from past efforts as well as surprising developments - and achievement - in recently stagnant areas.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great inner strength, strong individuality and the type of intellect which marks you for leadership in whatever field you choose as a career. These fields are many. With outstanding business acumen and a feeling for finance that amounts almost to wizardry, you could reach the top of the heap in either of these areas. You have a powerful imagination and could write well; possibly have a talent for art as well. Other fields in which you could succeed: the theater, the law, statesmanship and diplomacy. Birthdate of: Maxwell Anderson, Amer. playwright.

The first car to drive faster than 100 miles an hour was the European opposed-piston Gobron-Brillie, according to the National Automobile Club.

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Acting is a precarious life, and actors tend to practice brooding, mulling and moaning when off-duty. Not Earl Holliman. He'd make Dale Carnegie seem a pessimist.

True, the costar of NBC's "Police Woman" did grouse a bit in a lunch interview about the fact that those who regularly appear in a TV series often are passed over for roles in theatrical movies.

"But I tell you, I get up every morning, and I really smile all the way to work," he said. "I like what I'm doing.... It's so nice after all these years to have a job to go to every day."

Holliman hails from Tennesseas Swamp, La., which is quite a ways from Hollywood. One of 10 kids, raised by a roustabout oil worker in Texas after his natural father died, he's been star-struck since childhood.

And even after all these years of Hollywood life, he still recalls both the excitement and the date he spoke his first words in a movie.

It was June 5, 1952, he was a gangly 24-year-old newcomer, an obscurity in a Martin and Lewis comedy and the immortal line was, "Straight down the hall and turn to your left."

Since then, he's starred in two short-lived series of his own — "Hotel de Paris" and "Wide Country" — and acted in over 30 films, among them "The Rainmaker," "Giant" and "The Bridges at Toko Ri."

Ironically, the last film, a Korean war drama of 1955 vintage, marked the first time Holliman, a former Navy enlisted man, actually went to sea with the Navy. He enlisted while under-age but was discharged when the Navy found out. A few years later, he signed up legally, became a radioman, but never went beyond the three-mile limit, he says.

"I finally went to sea aboard the Oriskany, an aircraft carrier, out in the South China Sea when we made 'Bridges,'" said Holliman, who spent part of his real Navy tour gaining acting experience in a little theater group at the Navy's base in Norfolk, Va.

"I really went back into the Navy the second time to get my G.I. Bill. I had no other way to go to college."

The money helped finance a semester at the University of Southern California, then acting studies at the Pasadena Playhouse. Odd jobs kept body and soul together until the breaks began.

He considers "Police Woman," now in its third season, "the best time of my life, career-wise. Even when I had star billing (in films), I never had this kind of recognition. Or this kind of money."

True, the job leaves him pooped. The actor, dog-tired when interviewed, said on most days he rises at 5:30 a.m., if he's going to the studio, and doesn't usually knock off until 6 p.m. But he doesn't mind.

"I really feel like a survivor in this business," Holliman, 48, said softly. "I see people around me, people who were stars when I was beginning. Marvelous actors. They come in, do one scene and leave. "But it's that kind of business. And I feel lucky."

Autos are expensive in the Soviet Union, with a Soviet version of the Fiat 124, for example, costing about $8,000. In West Germany, the same car sells for about $2,800.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR WEDNESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Be patient if temporarily stymied in some project in which you are involved. New factors seem to be up for consideration. Keep eyes and ears open.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Do not dash headlong into activities no matter how much is expected of you or how much you wish to accomplish. There are "gray" areas to study well.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Don't wait too long before makin' up your mind in matters where the time element is important. Highly favored: intellectual pursuits, travel and communications.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Some influences are friendly; others not. The latter could lead you into careless thinking and action if you are not on guard. Give thought to past experience.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Some news you receive may not please but curb your innate tendency to "explode" when annoyed. And DON'T vent your ill-humor on associates.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Stars indicate a fine harvest from past endeavors. Reward may come in the form of a promotion - with increased prestige.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Satisfactory gains indicated through carrying on with present operations, but day will not be good for starting new ventures.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): You may encounter a few baffling situations: Remain undisturbed neither over anxious nor careless. Avoid excesses and extremes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): An auspicious day. Seek solutions to pending problems through conferences, consultation with experts. Be concise and efficient without stepping on anyone's toes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Mixed influences, mixed possibilities. How you react to opposition and unexpected obstacles will tell the tale.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Especially favored now: all creative efforts (writings especially), travel, meetings of purpose. Earnings can be increased through any of these avenues.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Stars now promise benefits from past efforts as well as surprising developments - and achievement - in recently stagnant areas.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great inner strength, strong individuality and the type of intellect which marks you for leadership in whatever field you choose as a career. These fields are many. With outstanding business acumen and a feeling for finance that amounts almost to wizardry, you could reach the top of the heap in either of these areas. You have a powerful imagination and could write well; possibly have a talent for art as well. Other fields in which you could succeed: the theater, the law, statesmanship and diplomacy. Birthdate of: Maxwell Anderson, Amer. playwright.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Acting is a precarious life, and actors tend to practice brooding, mulling and moaning when off duty. Not Earl Holliman. He'd make Dale Carnegie seem a pessimist.

True, the costar of NBC's "Police Woman" did grouse a bit in a lunch interview about the fact that those who regularly appear in a TV series of ten are passed over for roles in theatrical movies.

"But I tell you, I get up every morning, and I really smile all the way to work," he said. "I like what I'm doing.... It's so nice after all these years to have a job to go to every day."

Holliman hails from Tennessee, which is quite a ways from Hollywood. One of 10 kids, raised by a roustabout oil worker in Texas after his natural father died, he's been star-struck since childhood.

And even after all these years of Hollywood life, he still recalls both the excitement and the date he spoke his first words in a movie.

It was June 5, 1952, he was a gangly 24-year-old newcomer, an obscurity in a Martin and Lewis comedy and the immortal line was, "Straight down the hall and turn to your left."

Since then, he's starred in two short-lived series of his own — "Hotel de Paris" and "Wide Country" — and acted in over 30 films, among them "The Rainmaker," "Giant" and "The Bridges at Toko Ri."

Ironically, the last film, a Korean war drama of 1955 vintage, marked the first time Holliman, a former Navy enlisted man, actually went to sea with the Navy.

He enlisted while under-age but was discharged when the Navy found out. A few years later, he signed up legally, became a radioman, but never went beyond the three-mile limit, he says.

"I finally went to sea aboard the Oriskany, an aircraft carrier, out in the South China Sea when we made 'Bridges,'" said Holliman, who spent part of his real Navy tour gaining acting experience in a little theater group at the Navy's base in Norfolk, Va.

"I really went back into the Navy the second time to get my G.I. Bill. I had no other way to go to college."

The money helped finance a semester at the University of Southern California, then acting studies at the Pasadena Playhouse. Odd jobs kept body and soul together until the breaks began.

He considers "Police Woman," now in its third season, "the best time of my life, career-wise. Even when I had star billing (in films), I never had this kind of recognition. Or this kind of money."

True, the job leaves him pooped. The actor, dog-tired when interviewed, said on most days he rises at 5:30 a.m., if he's going to the studio, and doesn't usually knock off until 6 p.m. But he doesn't mind.

"I really feel like a survivor in this business," Holliman, 48, said softly. "I see people around me, people who were stars when I was beginning. Marvelous actors. They come in, do one scene and leave. "But it's that kind of business. And I feel lucky."

Autos are expensive in the Soviet Union, with a Soviet version of the Fiat 124, for example, costing about $8,000. In West Germany, the same car sells for about $2,800.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Myrtle's pet canary escaped from its cage one morning and fluttered into a neighbor's back yard. The neighbor captured the bird but refused to give it back. Finally Myrtle filed suit.

When the case came to trial, the neighbor argued as follows:

"The canary may have been her property while it was in the cage. But once it escaped into the open air, it was 'fair game'. So now it's mine.

However, the court ruled in favor of Myrtle, primarily on the ground that the canary had been domesticated. It was no more "fair game," said the court, than an organ grinder's monkey would be if it slipped out of its collar.

Generally speaking, an animal that is wild by nature belongs to no one. But once captured and domesticated, it may become as much private property as an automobile or a suit of clothes. From then on, even if it escapes, most courts will continue to recognize the original owner's rights.

A more extreme case involved a rare species of parrot. This time, the bird escaped and remained at large for almost three weeks. When finally captured, it had made its way to the next county.

But again, when the owner proved that the bird had been trained, the court upheld his property rights in the parrot and ordered it returned.

On the other hand, consider the saga of a sea lion which escaped from a holding tank into the Atlantic Ocean and was later recaptured by a fisherman.

Here, the creature had not been domesticated in any way. The court thereupon decided in favor of the fisherman, pointing out that the sea lion had "regained its natural liberty."

"There was no intention on its part," said the court, "of returning to its place of captivity, or of again submitting itself to the domination of the (original owner)."

Bingo Law Suit Filed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A lawsuit has been filed in U.S. District Court to stop officials from enforcing the state's bingo law.

The suit was filed last week by George Joseph of Oregon and the National Association of the Physically Handicapped of Columbus. They contend an amendment to the law that took effect last week is forcing the organization to cancel leases and risk lawsuits.

The amendment provides that rent may not exceed $250 per bingo session, that noncharitable property owners can lease space for bingo only to two organizations a week, and each organization may hold no more than two bingo sessions.

The plaintiffs contend this discriminates between charitable and noncharitable organizations and violates their civil rights.

The lower rent, the plaintiffs contend, is causing them to break lease agreements and limit the number of places organizations can rent to hold bingo games.

Defendants in the suit are various state and local officials.
